This one week course is aimed at non-native speakers of English teaching EFL to students of all age groups, in various types of schools and for different purposes.

Afternoon modules are designed for the teaching of a certain age range of pupils/students. Each afternoon module is changed weekly and may be combined with certain other weekly modules to form two-week courses. Please check this carefully before making your choice according to our published start dates.

Objectives

This practical course develops the participants' personal language skills and presents various techniques and methodological approaches of teaching English as a foreign language.

English as a Foreign Language in Practice

For the morning sessions, the course tutors will place each participant in an international live English as a Foreign Language class which includes non-teachers. Participants will refresh and develop their personal language skills. Simultaneously, participants may observe in practice many of the skills and techniques taught in the afternoon methodology classes.

Participants will have the opportunity to observe teaching strategies taught in the afternoon methodology classes as well as to practise their language through Listening, Speaking, Reading and Writing. In addition to the consequent increase in personal fluency and confidence in lesson delivery, these sessions will be devoted to refreshing the experience of being a student again. Teachers all too often become stale and lose sensitivity to the real situation of the student. Here they become more acutely aware of learning difficulties from a student's point of view. The methodology tutor will receive and discuss feedback in the afternoon session.

EFL Methodology and Teaching Strategies

The afternoon sessions cover essential strategies and techniques of teaching language and discuss how to manipulate them in the classroom.

Weekends

Weekend days (on arrival or between two course weeks) are devoted to informal learning through self-study, personal research, cultural visits and activities, exchange of ideas and experience as well as practising language skills in everyday situations.

Minimum English Level CEF B2 TOPICS

Education Today ; Consideration of the 8 Competencies

This session will introduce the 8 competencies and how they should be incorporated into curriculum and lesson planning.

Is there a Place for Traditional Approaches in Classrooms today?

Do we focus too much on communicative ability and fluency at the expense of accuracy? This session looks at how more traditional approaches still have a place alongside some of the newer approaches and shouldn't be disregarded as old-fashioned.

Online Learning, Distance and Blended Learning

A look at how the internet has created new opportunities for their learning. Students can practise their English or communicate their ideas through special study groups and online forums.

Modern Language, Slang and the Influence of Technology on Language

Advances in technology have influenced the language and introduced new slang terms. This session examines some of these recent changes.

Introduction to CLIL and Using English in the Classroom

What is CLIL and how is it different to bilingual or immersion education?

Interactive Whiteboards (IWBs)

Many classrooms are now equipped with IWBs. In this session we show you how the IWB can be utilised by introducing a range of activities and techniques.

Pronunciation

A look at why pronunciation is important and some activities to practise in the classroom. Page 2

This module is recommended for non-native speakers of English teaching students aged 10 upwards. The course is also suitable for teachers of CLIL, Business English and English for Specific Purposes.
